

what's up with

Maine?

WHAT'S IN MAINE?

Believe it or not, all states don't have an overpopulation of stray and unwanted animals. Oklahoma does, but Maine does not. Lots of people in Maine would love to adopt a rescue animal, but often there's not enough available. We began a relationship with an animal rescue in Maine after one of our dogs was adopted by an amazing Maine resident who set up the connection!

SO WHERE DO THEY GO?

Our SPACAR animals are transported to our partner rescue at the Animal Refuge League of Greater Portland (ARLGP) in Westbrook, Maine. They are a non-profit rescue that receives animals from across the nation to their state-of-art facility! They partner with over 60 rescues and shelters. In-house, they have exceptional vet care as well as humane educational programs. Our animals receive the best treatment and are placed in loving homes in Maine.

HOW DO THEY GET THERE?

A bus of course! SPACAR now has its very own bus that we use to drive our animals to Maine. Wonderful SPACAR volunteers drive non-stop from Skiatook to Westbrook, stopping along the way for potty and food breaks.

FUN FACTS

- Maine has more people wanting to adopt dogs and cats than they have available!
- SPACAR animals are typically adopted within 14 days of arriving at ARLGP in Maine!
- Once they arrive, ARLGP provides acupuncture to our pups after the long drive from Oklahoma!
- If you foster for us, your foster may have the opportunity to go to Maine, ask us!

SPACAR's bus

On the road

Maine arrival